

Jipmer, Heidelberg University to work on public health

Jipmer has signed up for a collaborative academic partnership with the German Heidelberg Institute of Global Health (HIGH) at Heidelberg University. A press note said the strategic collaboration, spanning a four-year period (till 2026), aims to advance the endeavours of both the institutions to build capability for global health, in line with the sustainable developmental goals of the United Nations. Experts and officials from both the institutions came together recently for the launch meeting of the partnership.
